CENTRAL PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Atlanta, Georgia

Completed 1996

Central Presbyterian Church in Atlanta was originally constructed in 1885 in the Gothic Revival style and is located across the street from the Georgia State Capitol building. The renovation included a new, more flexible, stone chancel platform, new choir platform, new and renovated furnishings, new decorative painting, new lighting (including new custom wrought iron hanging fixtures), preparation for an expanded pipe organ, and a total refurbishment of the interior.

The new furniture & lighting fixtures were designed to fit in and enhance the late Victorian Gothic style of the original building, while being flexible and allowing the space to be used for various services and musical events.
